In March 2022, the Biden Administration of cially launched ARPA-H, modeling it after the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency for Health (DARPA), to support high-risk, high-impact research that will help solve some of society's most dif cult health challenges.

ARPA-H has already funded immunology-focused projects, but many researchers in the community do not have a